

The program start by creating 2 identical structure where the is an array that will hold the pthreadid and a LV to understand the depth of the tree.

During the thread creating the struct will be passed. Each thread will duplicate the struct, copy the value, add its pthreadid and then call other 2 thread and so on till the correct LV value.